Money Flows in Second Generation
16 March 2021

...[Every] financial decision sets off a chain reaction of socioeconomic activity where money inevitably leaves our immediate control and becomes subject to the invisible forces of our existing financial infrastructure. Wealth is about having stake in this financial infrastructure — whether that's in the form of financially supporting what already exists, creating new value channels that others can benefit from or doing the work that's necessary to make the system better as a whole.
